Protecting Your Confidential Health Is Important To Us

Notice Of Privacy Practices

This notice describes how health information about you may be used and disclosed and how you can get access to this information. Please read it carefully.

We want you to know about the new Federal law that protects the confidentiality of your health information. The law is called the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act and it is known as HIPAA for short.

What has Changed?

We have always worked to keep your health information confidential. What is new is that the Federal Government has developed new standards for protecting the privacy of this information. This has challenged us to review how information about you is used not only in our medical records, but also with the telephone, faxes, copy machines, and mailings. Since our office is subject to State and Federal law regarding the confidentiality of your health information, we want you to know about the policies and procedures that we developed to make sure your health information will not be shared with anyone who does not require it and to inform you about your rights as our patient.

What is your Health Information?

According to the HIPAA law, your "Protected Health Information" is any information about you that can identify you. This includes your health records and such things as your name, telephone number, address, and dates such as your birthday, start of treatment and appointments.

How Your Health Information May Be Used

We will use and communicate you health information only for the purposes of providing your treatment, obtaining payment and conducting our clinic operations. Your health information will not be used for other purposes unless we have asked for and been voluntarily given your written permission.

To Provide Information

We will use your health information within our clinic to provide you with the best health care possible. This may include administrative and clinical office procedures designed to optimize scheduling and coordination of care between staff members. In addition, we may share your health information with referring physicians, pharmacies, or other health care practitioners providing you treatment.

To Obtain Insurance Reimbursement

We may include your health information with an invoice used to help you collect payment for treatment you receive from us.

To Conduct Clinic Operations

Your health information may be disclosed during audits by government appointed agencies as part of their quality assurance and compliance reviews. Your health information may be reviewed during the routine processes of certification, licensing, or credentialing activities.

In Patient Reminders

Because we believe regular care is very important to your health, we will remind you of a scheduled appointment or that it is time for you to contact us and make an appointment. Additionally, we may contact you to follow-up on your care and inform you of treatment options or services that may be of interest to your family. These communications are an important part of our philosophy of partnering with our patients to be sure they receive the best care possible. It may include postcards, letters, telephone reminders or electronic reminders such as email (unless you tell us that you do not want to receive these reminders).

Abuse Or Neglect

We will notify government authorities if we believe a patient is the "victim" or "perpetrator" of abuse, neglect or domestic violence. We will make this disclosure only when we are compelled by our ethical judgment, when we believe we are specifically required or authorized by law, or with the patient's agreement.

Public Health And National Security

We may be required to disclose to government officials health information necessary to complete any investigation related to public health or national security. Health information could be important when the government believes that the public safety could benefit from such disclosure.
